A WORTHY ENTERPRISE.

Rev. W. B. Crumpton, who was in our city recently, is engaged in a work which should enlist the sympathy and earnest cooperation of every woman in Kentucky. He is seeking to establish at Georgetown College an endowment of $50,000, to be called the Woman's Endowment, to aid poor girls in receiving an education. Everything along the line of endowments for our colleges has been for the boys. As Dr. Crumpton truly says, "Nobody seems to care for the education of a poor girl beyond that she can get in the neighborhood school." At Georgetown College the girls have been put on an equality with the boys in everything except the beneficiary fund. Nobody has provided anything for them. Every woman should be represented in this endowment for some amount. The plan as Dr. Crumpton explained it, is for obligations to be given extending over five years, by the end of which time he hopes to have secured the endowment. Very large donations from individuals is not expected; it will be the many small contributions which will aggregate the one large amount. Georgetown College is one of the first colleges of the South, and in this enterprise of caring for the poor girls it leads all others. Have we not reason to expect the aggressive women of Kentucky to take in hand this laudable enterprise and carry it on to completion? We are sure that we are not mistaken in the women of this community in that they will respond nobly.

God ruleth among the nations. He exalteth one and humbleth another. Let the people seek after Him. Sad will be the fate of this nation when we forget God.

TO LOAN.

WE HAVE THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS TO LOAN ON REAL ESTATE SECURITY AT A LOW RATE OF INTEREST.

A. HOFFMAN & SON.

Dewey is now the man of the hour. Before another issue of our paper reaches the people some other naval commander may also become a hero. But be his achievement ever so great, it will not far surpass that of the conqueror of Manila and the destroyer of the Spanish fleet at that place. His victory was one of the most wonderful the world has ever known, having completely annihilated the enemy's forces without losing a man, or having one of his ships badly damaged. Hurrah for Dewey and his brave followers!

Miss Helen Gould's gift of $100,000 to the Government has been accepted and her check for that amount has been received at the Treasury Department. She can not in person go to war in behalf of our country but generously has she contributed to the war fund. She has received an abundance of this world's goods, and freely should she give to causes which alleviate the oppressed, forsaken and desolate. Gifts like this for the proclamation of the gospel in home and foreign lands for Christ's sake, is treasure laid up in heaven.

CASTING OFF A LINE.

Mr. Blimby Meets With a Little Experience on a New York Wharf.

"I'm afraid there's one towboat captain who would not give me a job if I should apply," said Mr. Blimby, "and that is the man whose line I cast off in South street the other day. The tug was lying along the end of the wharf, hanging by a single line, with the loop around the head of a spile, and the other end made fast around the forward bitts aboard the boat. The captain was in the pilothouse, and he called to the deckhand that he guessed they would go up to pier 919. I was standing on the end of the wharf, and when the deckhand began casting the line off from the bitts I started for the spile to cast it off there.

"I like boats, and I've loafed along South street a good deal, and I've seen a million men cast off lines, but it's a funny thing I had never cast off one myself, but I was going to now. All the men I ever saw cast off a line just took hold of it and lifted it right off, easy. I took hold of this one with perfect confidence, but the first thing I knew it sagged down and stuck on the other side of the spile, and it did the same thing again when I tried, which I did somewhat hastily from another point. It didn't come off easily at all, and finally I had to take hold of it with both hands and lift it up carefully clear of the spile, while the captain, looking out of the pilothouse window, and the deckhand, standing by the bitts and looking up at me from the deck, smiled good humoredly at my clumsiness. By that time I had discovered that in casting off a line, as in most other things, a man must learn how to do it before he can do the work well. But the worst was yet to come.

"I had always observed that when a man cast off a line he hung on to it for a moment and walked along the wharf till he was somewhere near abreast of the man, who was taking it in aboard and then gave it a little toss, so as to keep it out of the water, keeping it dry to make it last longer and make it easier and pleasanter to handle. When I had finally got this line off, I held on to it and walked with it toward the boat to toss the loop aboard, but I noticed that the man on deck took up the slack very promptly and fully as I came along. He didn't give me credit for knowing anything about keeping the line out of the water. He was prepared to see me just simply drop it when I struck the stringpiece, and he was taking up the slack so that he could keep it out of the water himself when I let go.

"And so they sailed away, perfectly good natured about it, but very evidently taking me for a landlubber just down from the hills."—New York Sun.

Woodford Arrives at Washington.

New York, May 8.—General Stewart L. Woodford, United States Minister to Spain, arrived on the La Touraine Sunday morning and left for Washington in the afternoon.

Longer's shoe shop is now at corner of Maysville and High streets.

A "Lucky" Lawyer.

Numerous instances are given of the power that Mr. Rufus Choate possessed over a jury, concealing it even at the time he was exercising it with the most potent effect. Mr. E. P. Whipple instances two notable cases of this kind: One resolute jurymen said to another as he entered the "box":

"Now, mind you, there is one man in this crowd who will not give a verdict for the client of that man Choate. Why, sir, he is the great corrupter of juries. I know all his arts. He is engaged by fellows who wish to subvert justice between man and man. I hate him with my whole heart and soul!"

When the verdict was given for Choate's client, with hardly a discussion in the jury room, the wonder was expressed that this obstinate member of the conclave agreed so readily with the rest.

"Oh," he said, "the case was a plain one. Choate was right this time, and you know it would have been scandalous for me to violate justice because I had a prejudice against the person who supported it. Let him appear before us in a case where he is palpably wrong, and I will show you that I'm all right. He never can humbug me!"

On another occasion a hard headed, strong hearted, well educated farmer was one of a jury that gave five verdicts in succession for Choate's clients. He said:

"I did not think much of his flights of fancy, but I considered him a very lucky lawyer, for there was not one of those five cases that came before us where he wasn't on the right side."

Tried To Escape.

Ish Beggars and John Coons, both colored, who were sentenced to terms in the penitentiary at the last session of the Circuit court, tried to make their escape from the county jail one night last week, and would have succeeded had it not been for the "watchful" care deputy jailer, Chas. Sneed, preserves over the inmates of that place. They had made a chisel out of an old poker and by diligent work had removed an iron brace thereby being enabled to move a large stone from the wall. The men did the work in the day time and all of the prisoners in that part of the jail knew of the attempted escape and possibly had not their work been discovered the county would have few prisoners to feed at this time. Sheriff Jones took all prisoners sentenced to the penitentiary to Frankfort on last Friday. This is the third time Beggars has been in the pen.
